"The right of trial by jury, the Habeas Corpus, the Liberty of the Press, the Freedom of Speech, the Natural Rights of Persons, and the Rights of Property, must be preserved."
Extract from the order of General Hancock, of November 29, 1867.

For Circuit Judge,
JOHN R. GRACE,
OF TRIGO COUNTY.

For Commonwealth's Attorney,
JAS. B. GARNETT,
OF TRIGO COUNTY.

We observe from reading the papers that there is some kind of an election to come off next November.

We have taken several subscriptions from Republicans payable only when Hancock is elected, and are still taking them on those terms.

If Gen. Garfield continues to increase in popularity as rapidly as for the last few days, he will be able to carry Iowa in November.

Maj. Tom Ochiltree, of Texas, a prominent Republican leader, has imitated the example of Forney, Jerome and Pearson, and come out for Hancock.

Probably Xerxes was also a stockholder in the soldier's oil company, as, according to Garfield's declaration, he "commanded the soldiers of Greece."

Few if any of our exchanges have so easy and readable a local page as the Henderson Reporter. It is bristling with news, culled by some "power behind the throne."

The Republicans are consoling themselves with the thought, that no matter who is elected we will have a good President as all the candidates are Union generals.

Col. Pelton, Mr. Tilden's nephew, died at 3 A. M. on Thursday, from aneurism of the heart. The funeral took place from Mr. Tilden's house.

Hancock it seems is making better time in the presidential race, running on the rough field of battle, than Garfield is on the most improved. De Golyer payments.

Gen. Hancock will resign his commission as an officer in the army in a few days. You can bet on it that Garfield will not resign his seat in Congress till he sees how the thing is going to pan out in November.

"Did you know Mr. — had turned Greenbacker?" we overheard one gentleman ask another on the street the other day. "No, replied the other in surprise. "I didn't know he had fallen, when did he break?"

The Republicans have discovered that Gen. Hancock was once president of an oil company. Probably we can account for his running so well now upon the supposition that he was well greased.

It is strange that the Republican papers never find out how mean such men as Forney, Jerome and Pearson are until they display good sense enough to learn the Republican party and declare their intention to affiliate with the Democrats.

Gen. J. B. Weaver, Garfield's competitor, for second best has written a long letter of acceptance of the Greenback nomination. It is now evident that Garfield is not running against Hancock at all, but will be satisfied if he can only beat Weaver.

While in Congress Garfield voted to table a motion tendering the thanks of Congress to Gen. Hancock. "For his wise, patriotic and timely recognition of the first rights of the citizen, and of the great principles of constitutional liberty, expressed in the order issued by him upon assuming command of the Fifth Military District," so-called, and for his prompt determination to restore and maintain the supremacy of the civil law within his command."

The motion was laid on the table, and now Gen. Hancock will reciprocate the favor by tabling the motion to make Garfield President.

Bayard will take the stump for Hancock and English.

Credit Mobilier corruption doesn't make a good record.

English will be the next vice president.
Farewell to Republican rule.

Vindication and victory.
Winfield S. Hancock is our next President.

Extract from the order of Gen. Hancock, of Nov. 29, 1867:
"The right of trial by jury, the Habeas Corpus, the Liberty of the Press, the Freedom of Speech, the Natural Rights of Persons, and the Rights of Property, must be preserved."

Yet a little while and the Democratic party will be in power once more.
Zealous and brave in war, patriotic and just in peace, the "Hero of Gettysburg" will lead us to victory.

It is not generally known that the vote of Kentucky gave Hancock the necessary two-thirds vote. Such is the case however. On the second ballot the vote for Hancock was 311. Before the result could be announced Wisconsin changed her vote giving him eleven more making 322. New Jersey followed with 18 making 340. Illinois with 42 making 382. Pennsylvania, whose vote had been divided between Randall and Hancock, changed all to Hancock making 408.

New York followed with 70 making 478, and then Kentucky, which had given only a part of her vote changed, giving him all and making the necessary number. We were keeping a record of the ballot and put down those states as they changed until the necessary 493 was secured; then all became chaos and confusion, and as soon as quiet was restored a new ballot was taken with the result already known to everybody. We mention this to show that New York and Kentucky, two of Tilden's strongholds elected Hancock and those who were near enough to the stand to hear in the tumult, and who took down the votes must admit that this is a true statement of the case.

The Republicans are threatening to call the Legislatures together in the Republican states that will go for Hancock and change the existing laws, with regard to the electors and appoint instead of elect them. This shows that they realize the desperate condition their cause is in though they will not find it an easy matter to subvert the laws and adapt them to their nefarious purposes. There is a Democratic Congress that can sit down upon such villainous doings.

The Capital Gazette says, it is ignorance to entertain the idea, that "two lovers couldn't sit up all night with one chair in the room, without one of them sitting on the floor." We would be glad if the Gazette would explain, as we can't understand how they both could use the same chair.

There might be a table in the room upon which one of them could sit, in which case they would be a chair-able couple. Bristow's innocent error for knowledge is too thin however. For proof and particulars apply to Buck Green, Dan O'Sullivan or the writer.

The Evansville Journal is becoming alarmed at the popular stampede to Hancock and is in favor of taking the right of suffrage from the people and letting the Legislatures appoint electors. Here is what it says:

It will not cost much to convene the various Republican State Legislatures to appoint Presidential electors. Were the proclamation calling them together to be issued soon they would save the Democracy a good deal of unnecessary worry, and would obviate all necessity for tapping Mr. English's celebrated barrel.

A campaign lie has been started on Gen. Hancock, to the effect that he was engaged in an oil speculation that he was not altogether straight. Of course it is a lie, but the Republicans in their desperation do not want to "pour oil on the troubled waters" that are threatening to engulf Garfield.

There are no more enthusiastic supporters of Hancock than those who believed that Tilden should be re-nominated. They had said nothing against any candidate, and when Mr. Tilden withdrew were prepared to support any man the convention might name.

One or two of our country exchanges, not content with having forced Mr. Tilden to withdraw from the Presidential race before the Convention, are still causing him to spend sleepless nights, by their persistent persecutions.

"The Democratic editor continues to ask, with an air that is childlike and bland, whether Garfield will withdraw from the canvass. There was once a worthy farmer's wife whose mind had become so imbued with the doctrines of the Millites that she lived in constant expectation of the appearance of the Angel Gabriel. One winter night, when the snow lay deep on the ground, she was awakened by the woodpile rumbling down. Supposing that her long deferred hopes were about to be fulfilled, she shook her sleepy spouse, and exclaimed: "John, John! Wake up! Gabriel's coming! Don't you hear his wheels?" Her husband yawned and replied: "Go to sleep, wife, go to sleep, Gabriel isn't such a fool as to come on wheels such good sleighing as this is!" The Democrats can rest assured that General Garfield is gifted with altogether too much common sense to withdraw from a race in which he is several lengths ahead of his rival, and increasing the distance all the time."

Comparing Garfield's advent into the White House with the coming of Gabriel is a point well taken.

Milliken's account of the Press convention did not appear until the issue of July the 9th. Just a month from the day it met. We suppose he over-exerted himself flitting with the girls and it took him several weeks to recover from the week's dissipation. It must be remembered that John staid at home and sent an married cousin to represent the Patriot.

The Democratic ticket will have no more enthusiastic supporters than the friends of Mr. Tilden. While many of the recent anti-Tilden papers are still vilifying and heaping contumely upon the most self sacrificing statesman of his time, Tilden's friends have buried the past and are working with all the might for Hancock and English.

It is said that on the day Garfield was nominated that a bald eagle swooped down from its home in the blue ether on high and lit upon his house. The action of this bird of Liberty was typical of the manner in which the country is going to swoop upon and sit down on Garfield in November.

Mr. W. F. Barclay, one of the editors of the Herald-Enterprise, Russellville, was married on the 8th to Miss Alice Hargrave, of Franklin, Tenn. The South Kentuckian extends its congratulations and wishes them a long life of uninterrupted happiness.

There seems to be a pretty general desire among the editors to hold the next Convention at Paducah, provided the people down there want us. Mr. Sterling would not be a bad place to meet. Any place, however, will suit us if they just have plenty girls along.

There is a slight difference in the figures of the census enumerators and the Tobacco Leaf regarding the population of Clarksville. The man who has counted the noses says there are just 3,800 while the Leaf insists that there are 7,300 making a small difference of 3,500.

A Paducah young man attempting to put on his boots, found a house-snake in one of them.—Intelligencer.

Did you never hear of a man having "snakes in his boots" before? It is no uncommon occurrence in this good Republican country.

A young Democrat who stuttered attempted to remark to his Republican sweetheart, "I would like to see your Gar-Gar-Garfield beat our Hancock," but when he had finished the sentence the young lady had left the room.

Geo. Price colored, was hanged at Cincinnati, Friday for the murder of a white man. He escaped "some mighty hot weather on earth" but the indications are that he is spending the summer in a still warmer climate.

Mr. Tilden has given $100,000 to the Democratic campaign fund. Now let his maligners betake themselves to some hole in the ground.

Marshall Jewell, of Connecticut is chairman of the National Republican committee.

Gen. Rosecrans, upon whose staff Garfield was chief, is enthusiastically for Hancock.

The Democratic Church is still receiving Republican repentant sinners.

The next thing we hear the Republicans will be objecting to Hancock because he wears socks.

There is talk of organizing a society for the suppression of campaign poets.

Garfield will make a Credit-able race after all.

It is better to have no political record than a corrupt one.
